

Head and Shoulders Patterns For Day and Swing Trading

Statistically, the Head and Shoulders is the most accurate of the price patterns, reaching their projected target almost 85% of the time.

The regular head and shoulders pattern is defined by two swing highs (the shoulders) with a higher high (the head) between them.

The pattern can form in different variations, and as Master Traders we understand the foundation of the pattern.

In this short course, we will describe and review how to recognize the right pattern structure and trade it.

This empowers us to understand and able use all variations of the foundation pattern.

This session will bring clarity to what confuses the majorities.

Technical investors and traders often ask us, what is the is the entry and target, some ask for the stop-loss too. But, how do you get to the point of entry?

This is based on the bigger picture technical pattern, and one of the biggest is the Head and Shoulder Pattern. It offers a great reward-to-risk when it setups right!

In this MT Live, we are going to teach you a powerful setup -- Master Trader Head and Shoulder Patterns -- and how to trade stocks and options on the best-looking setups.

- Learn:
- The Setup of the Master Trader Head and Shoulder Patterns and how to pick the best-looking setups
 - The psychology of the pattern and how they are being created with supply and demand
 - Using Multiple Time Frames (MTF) to perfect entry
 - Trading stocks and options on these setups for maximum returns
 - Watch us scan for new trade setups and discuss what to look for to invest and trade in these setups
