Note:

The audio track on this video had a hum in it from the recording session. Unfortunately, this is on the master. Most purchasers have had no problem listening to the material. But I am aware that the problem is there.

I have done what I can to improve the tapes. I have dubbed in an audio track from audio tapes made by one of the attendees. This has improved the tapes, but at a price. There are a few places where a few words of audio might be missing. The lip synch is off a bit in places. On the seminar tapes, the attendee missed taping two sections, so these have the original audio with the hum in it. The hum occurs between words, so what I am saying is clear. The content is there. It just may be a bit annoying to listen to. How serious this is depends on your VCR. On most VCR's the problem is noticeable, but not serious. If it is a problem on your VCR, try adjusting the tracking control, the volume, and the tone controls.

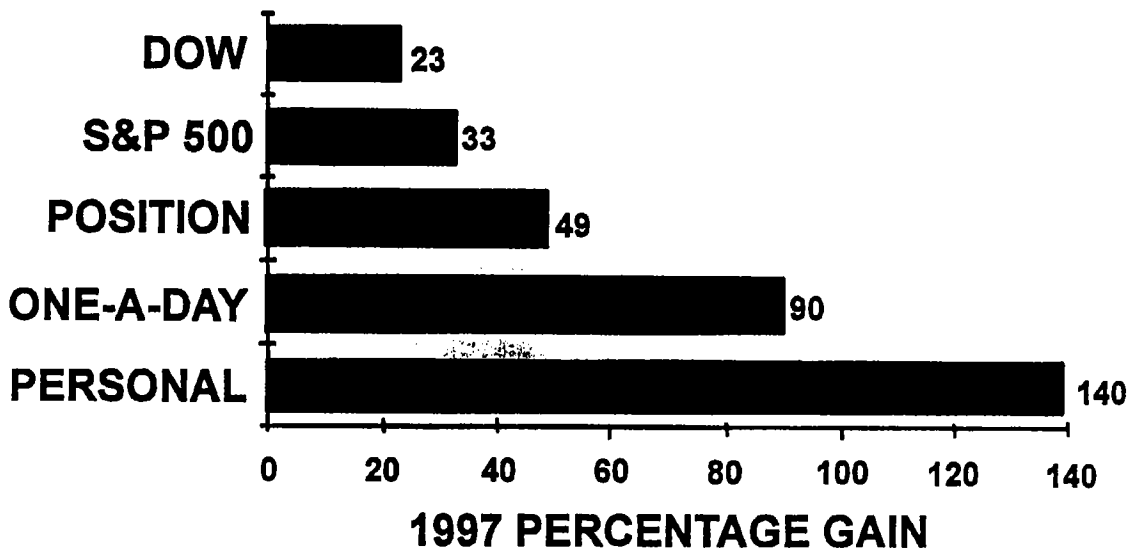

I apologize for this problem. I decided to continue to make the tapes available, because this recording session was a "target of opportunity" and the material is good. I hope to get a chance to redo the entire session in the future, but when that might happen is unclear.

Thank you for your understanding.

Hans
